conservation initiatives. It's important for all of us to stay informed and engaged on these issues so we can do our part to protect the environment and ensure a better future for generations to come.

Automatic Weather Station Working & Geography refers to the study of the location and operation of automatic weather stations. These stations are designed to gather and transmit real-time weather data, such as temperature, humidity, wind speed and direction, barometric pressure, and precipitation. The data collected from these stations is used by meteorologists, researchers, and other professionals to better understand weather patterns and make more accurate weather forecasts. The study of geography is also important in the context of weather station placement, as factors such as elevation, topography, and proximity to bodies of water can all influence weather conditions and therefore impact the accuracy of the data collected by the station.

Brief Summary of Activities/ Speech into the guidance:

The first activity under this MoU, Dr. R. E. Najan provides that selecting research students for Ph.D. work can be a challenging task. On dated 12th and 13th April 2022 in our college campus. It requires careful consideration of the candidate's academic background, research experience, and potential for future research. It's important to assess the student's ability to think critically, work independently, and communicate clearly. When it comes to guiding students on research methodology, it's essential to provide a comprehensive overview of the research process, including defining research questions, selecting appropriate research methods, collecting and analysing data, and interpreting results. It's also essential to guide how to write a research proposal, literature review, and research paper, as well as how to present findings clearly and concisely. Research methodology refers to the systematic approach used to conduct research. It involves the overall process of planning, designing, conducting, analysing, and interpreting research studies. Research methodology includes the selection of appropriate research methods, data collection techniques, and statistical analysis methods. It also involves developing a research proposal, defining research questions, and identifying research variables. Research methodology is crucial for ensuring that research studies are conducted in a rigorous, valid, and reliable manner and that the findings are trustworthy. It requires a deep understanding of research principles and techniques and the ability to apply them in practice. Overall, selecting research students and guiding them through the research process requires patience, dedication, and a deep understanding of research methodology.

Brief Summary of Activities/ Speech into the guidance:

1. The assessment process of NAAC (National Assessment and Accreditation Council) can be quite overwhelming, but with proper guidance and preparation, it can be tackled effectively. As for the role of Geography, it is an important subject that can contribute significantly to the overall assessment of an institution. The subject can help in evaluating the institution's ability to provide quality education, conduct research, and engage with the community. The assessment process takes into account various factors such as the curriculum, teaching-learning process, research and innovation, infrastructure, student support and progression, governance, leadership, and management. Institutions need to prepare thoroughly for the assessment process and ensure that they meet the required standards to achieve accreditation.
2. Attending a one-day talk on environmental issues can be a great way to learn about the current state of the environment and the challenges we face in preserving it. These talks usually feature expert speakers who offer insights and share their experiences in various fields related to the environment. The topics covered can range from climate change and pollution to conservation and sustainability. It's a great opportunity to gain a better understanding of the issues and to connect with like-minded individuals who are passionate about protecting the planet.
3. Disaster management and geography are two interconnected fields that work together to prevent and mitigate the impact of natural and human-made disasters. Geography helps us understand the physical and social environment in which disasters occur, while disaster management provides us with the tools and strategies to respond to and recover from disasters. In disaster management, the first step is always preparedness. This involves identifying potential hazards, assessing risks, and developing emergency response plans. Geography plays a crucial role in this stage, as it helps us understand the geography of the affected area, including the terrain, population density, and infrastructure. During a disaster, effective communication is crucial.

Geographic information systems (GIS) can be used to map and analyse the extent of the damage, identify areas in need of assistance, and coordinate rescue and relief efforts. GIS can also be used to monitor the disaster's impact on the environment and infrastructure. After a disaster, recovery efforts are essential to restore the affected area and prevent future disasters. Geography helps us identify areas that are at risk of future disasters and develop strategies to mitigate those risks. Disaster management also involves providing emotional and psychological support to those affected by the disaster. Overall, disaster management and geography are two critical fields that work together to prevent, respond to, and recover from disasters. By using geographic information and analysis, disaster management professionals can make better decisions and take more effective action to protect the environment and the people living in it.

4. The National Education Policy 2020 is a comprehensive framework that aims to transform the education system in India. It focuses on providing equitable access to quality education, promoting multi-disciplinary learning, and encouraging innovation and research. The policy also emphasizes the importance of vocational education, teacher training, and the use of technology in education. The National Workshop on Implementation of National Education Policy 2020 is one such initiative that aims to provide a platform for educators, policymakers, and other stakeholders to discuss the practical aspects of implementing the policy. The workshop will cover various topics such as curriculum development, teacher training, assessment and evaluation, the use of technology in education, and the role of vocational education in the new policy framework. It will also provide opportunities for participants to share their experiences and best practices and to collaborate with other institutions to implement the policy effectively. Overall, the National Workshop on Implementation of National Education Policy 2020 is an important step towards realizing the vision of a modern, inclusive, and innovative education system in India. By bringing together various stakeholders and providing them with the necessary guidance and resources, the workshop can help ensure the successful implementation of the policy and improve the quality of education for all.

Don't give clocks as presents

- Another superstition that finds its origins in Chinese homonyms, the phrase for 'giving a clock as a present' sounds the same as 'sending a person to their end'. As a result, clocks are a no-no for gifts, unless you're secretly wishing the recipient to an early grave. Another variation on this superstition is that when the clock that you gift the person stops, so will his or her life.
- Watches should fall under the same category, but they do have another name that doesn't sound like death and are a common gift choice worldwide now, so they might be able to skip by on a technicality

Academy of Language Studies, UiTM Kedah establishes linkage with KJ Somaiyya College of Arts

<https://qs-gen.com/academy-of-language-studies-uitm-kedah-establishes-linkage-with-kj-somaiyya-college-of-arts/>

March 1, 2022

In order to achieve the mission of becoming a Globally Renowned University (GRU) as aspired by UiTM, Academy of Language Studies, UiTM Kedah Branch continues to establish international linkages with foreign institutions. The most recent international activity was called Window to The Borderless World: Intercultural Communication via International Collaboration Project/ Student Mentoring Programme which was conducted starting 10 November 2021 until 20 January 2022 and the closing ceremony took place on 25 January 2022. This programme had involved 363 students from both institutions and more than 20 lecturers cum facilitators.

This online intercultural programme was unique because it attempted to increase students' awareness of the importance of intercultural communication. From November 2021 until January 2021, the students were put in groups in which they had Google meetings every week to present topics related to their lifestyles such as food, weddings, music, dance and movies from their respective countries. During the Google meetings, the students presented PowerPoint slides and videos they had prepared. In a few meetings, there were even live performances done by the students. The programme also featured invited guests from Colombia and Indonesia who joined the Google meetings to share some information about their countries. Every Google meeting was moderated by one lecturer from APB, UiTM Kedah Branch and one lecturer from K.J. Somaiya College, Maharashtra, India.

Other than Google meetings, the students were also required to post their daily experiences, and also any interesting readings they had done on the lifestyle and cultural topics on Facebook. A special Facebook group was created to enable the students to post their updates and so far, there are hundreds of postings on various topics done by both the students and lecturers.

This project was initiated by Pn. Syazliyat Ibrahim from APB, UiTM Kedah Branch and she was assisted by Pn. Sharina Saad, Pn. Norlizawati Md
